Biography

Born in 1966 in Täby outside of Stockholm in Sweden, Johan Söderqvist attended the Royal College of Music in Stockholm, studying composition and arranging.

A versatile musician who has been a keyboard player in many different jazz bands and folk music groups, Johan has toured extensively around the world before concentrating his activities on composition for film, television and theatre.

He wrote his first film score in 1991, Agnes Cecilia, and since then he has written numerous scores for film and television, including eleven scores for films directed by the acclaimed Danish director, Susanne Bier. Among those titles are the award-winning score for Brothers, After the Wedding and, Things We Lost in the Fire, where he collaborated with Academy Award-winning composer Gustavo Santaolalla, and in 2010, the Academy award winning In a better world.

He has also made a prizewinning score to Tomas Alfredsons Let the right one in

In 2005 & 2009, Johan Söderqvist was nominated as Best Composer by the European Film Academy for his Brothers (2005) and Let the right one in (2009) scores. The Brothers score was also awarded for Best Film Music in Cannes as well as the 'Rencontres cinématographiques de Cannes' Award for Best Music in Film.

In 2013 the Norwegian/English production Kon-tiki gained a Golden globe nomination & an Oscar nomination as Best foreign film
